*Why it's essential to be fitted for golf clubs
~ Why wouldn't you ? ~*

Club fitting is the single most important decision concerning your next club purchase. In today's market, getting the right set makeup and configuration is more challenging than ever. Spending the time to seek Professional assistance will be well worth the effort.

The days of buying clubs straight off the rack are long gone. Today, we have the technology to fit all players with the same attention to detail once reserved for only the elite players. You might say your game doesn't warrant this type of scrutiny, but I beg to differ – all players can benefit from a club fitting. The areas of assessment and the depth of evaluation will vary from player to player, but the end result is always the same; a new club purchase that is proven to increase satisfaction and lengthen ownership.

Wedge Grind and Bounce

When using a perfectly fit wedge grind, you can trust that the club is going to do more of the work, even on difficult shots. Wedge Bounce is also key to understanding wedge grinds, as opening the blade presents more bounce, while closing it down presents less.

Vokey grinds help you manipulate bounce more precisely: the high bounce wedge grinds like the D and K grinds offer more forgiveness on your wedge shots; while the low bounce L grind helps you create shots around the green. Wedge bounce and grind improves your consistency and control over your wedge shots.

The Five Steps

of a Ping Club Fitting

1. Player Interview
2. Static Measurements
3. Dynamic Swing Test
4. Analyze Ball Flight
5. On Course Monitoring

PING FITTING LEADS TO LOWER SCORES

THE IMPORTANCE OF A PING CLUB FITTING

When you have a club that fits you, you'll swing more comfortably and consistently, which leads to lower scores. Ping's color code system is a key part of this process, helping you identify the club that's right for you.
